Subject:- Review of IUC.

Sir,

The concept of IUC is totally flawed in the context of current scenario in India telecom sector where 3 generations of telecom technologies are coexisting.

In view of different costing for each type of technology, it would be appropriate that costs and benefits of particular technology are shared among users of that technology only.

Therefore TRAI needs to create a framework all costs of telecom networks are recovered from it's own subscribers rather than cross- subsidisation ba various technologies.It will also reduce regulatory intervention and allow each technologies on its own merits.

Since as per TRAI estimates, older telecom technologies are going to be around for a while, it is better that across technologies and network be dispensed with immediately and each technology be allowed to complate on its own merits.

Yours Sincerly
